The City of Inglewood has approved the construction of a new arena for the Los Angeles Clippers. The arena will be located in Inglewood and will include a world-class basketball arena, practice facility and team offices for the L.A. Clippers. The arena is expected to be completed in 2012. The arena will be a major addition to the Inglewood community and will provide a new venue for the Clippers to play their home games. The arena will also provide a new venue for other sports and entertainment events.

Brad Pyle, Jr. laid to rest in Inglewood

Brad Pyle, Jr. was laid to rest in Inglewood on Monday, November 14, 2011. Pyle was a well-known figure in the Inglewood community and was a member of the Inglewood Chamber of Commerce. He was also a member of the Inglewood Athletic Club and was a former member of the Inglewood Fire Department. Pyle was a dedicated community member and was always willing to help others in need. His passing was a great loss to the Inglewood community.

Opinion: Can Working Parents Still Teach Their Kids at Home?

As a parent, you know your child's education is one of the most important things you can do for them. But what if you're a working parent? Can you still teach your child at home? The answer is yes, but it's not always easy. Working parents often have limited time to spend with their children, which can make it difficult to provide a quality education at home. However, there are ways to make it work. You can use online resources, hire tutors, and involve your child's teachers. The key is to be creative and committed to your child's education.
