Smith. Pyle was born in Inglewood, California, on May 15, 1945. He was a graduate of Inglewood High School and attended the University of California, Los Angeles. He was a member of the Inglewood Community Center and the Inglewood Chamber of Commerce. He is survived by his wife, Mary, and two children, Brad and Jennifer. The family will receive friends at the Inglewood Community Center, 12345 Main St., Inglewood, CA 90701, from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 7, 2011.

Opinion: Can Working Parents Still Teach Their Kids at Home?

Can working parents still teach their kids at home? It's a question that many parents are asking these days. With the demands of a full-time job, it can be difficult to find the time and energy to spend on your children's education. However, there are ways to make it work. One option is to hire a tutor or a private teacher. Another option is to use online resources and educational programs. The key is to be creative and find a solution that works for your family. Working parents can still provide a high-quality education for their children, even if it means taking on extra responsibilities.
