The Los Angeles Clippers announced today that the city of Inglewood has approved the construction of a new arena for the team. The arena, which will be located in Inglewood, will include a world-class basketball arena, practice facility and team offices for the L.A. Clippers. The arena is expected to be completed in 2012. The arena will be the first arena to be built in Inglewood since the 1960s. The arena will be a major addition to the city's sports and entertainment district.

Brad Pyle, Jr. laid to rest in Inglewood

Brad Pyle, Jr. was laid to rest in Inglewood on Monday, Nov. 14, 2011. Pyle was a well-known figure in the community and was remembered for his contributions to the city. The funeral service was held at a local church and was attended by many family members and friends. Pyle was a devoted father and a community leader. His passing is a great loss to the city and the community.

Opinion: Can Working Parents Still Teach Their Kids at Home?

As parents, we want the best for our children. We want them to be successful and to have a bright future. But what if we are working parents? Can we still teach our kids at home? This is a question that many parents are asking. The answer is not a simple one. It depends on many factors, including the parent's work schedule, the child's needs, and the resources available. However, there are ways to make it work. Parents can create a structured learning environment at home, even if they are working. They can use online resources and hire tutors if needed. The key is to be committed and to find a way to balance work and family.
