MESSAGE FROM FIRE CHIEF DARYL L. OSBY

In the summer of 2011, the Los Angeles County Fire Department launched its first strategic plan in many years. We entitled it "Engineering our Future" to communicate our plans to our workforce, our residents, and everyone else served by our organization. We realized that the men and women who went to work during our early days as the County's Department of Forestry built a strong foundation. Upon their shoulders, the many generations to follow continued our mission to save life and property. In their honor, we are still proud to be here to serve the now four million residents who depend on us for help.

From the beginning, our strategic plan has been a road map to take us to the year 2020. Now in its fourth year, our strategic plan is truly giving shape to the many changes we have envisioned for our future. With 12 major goal areas, we were able to focus on many essential needs, especially in our business operations. The most critical goal is ensuring our financial sustainability to meet our daily emergency operations in 58 cities and all of the unincorporated areas served by our Department.

Following the 2008 recession, our primary source of revenue, property taxes, was significantly depleted by declining property values. This caused us to draw upon our financial reserves to keep our fire stations open and maintain our other services. While the economy continues to improve and our property tax revenue is slowly being restored, we learned many lessons. Achieving sustainability through the implementation of cost-cutting and other financial efficiencies brought both challenges and opportunities. We will continue to use these measures to provide fiscal accountability to the public as we design and implement new services.

Other important focus areas for me as Fire Chief include community engagement, the development of our new Emergency Medical Services Bureau, risk management, and training. We are transforming our organization to embrace the use of technology in our everyday operations. We are committed to providing a completely transparent work environment and we ask all of our employees to be personally accountable for the work that they perform each day. Together with our emphasis on changing our culture and ensuring effective communication, we are making visible change.

With one eye on our past and both eyes on our future, I am confident that the Los Angeles County Fire Department team will secure our place in history as one of the most highly trained, innovative, resilient, and compassionate emergency service agencies in the world.

Fire Chief Daryl L. Osby
